

New Prayers and Invocations to Hathor among Unpublished Dipinti from the Thutmose III Temple at Deir el-Bahari

MIROSŁAW BARWIK

Abstract: This paper presents a group of nine fragmentarily preserved dipinti from the Temple of Thutmose III in Deir el-Bahari. The pieces belong to the corpus of dipinti discovered by the Polish Archaeological Mission at the beginning of the 1960s, the bulk of which was already published by the late Marek Marciak.

Keywords: New Kingdom Egypt, Deir el-Bahari, Tuthmosis III temple, hieratic dipinti

The corpus of hieratic dipinti from the Thutmose III temple at Deir el-Bahari may be enriched by dozens of unpublished fragments. Though Marek Marciak included some of the fragmentarily preserved dipinti in his edition,¹ most of the material of this kind was omitted by him, mainly due to the imperfect state of preservation of the pieces in question.² The unpublished material provides new prosopographic data, but the bulk of the inscriptions is restricted to fragments of prayers and invocations. This is the case of the prayers to Hathor presented here, which were drawn up according to the well documented pattern.³

None of the presented fragments is recorded in the published catalogues of finds, as the fragments with hieratic dipinti were excluded with the aim of their being published separately by Marciak.⁴

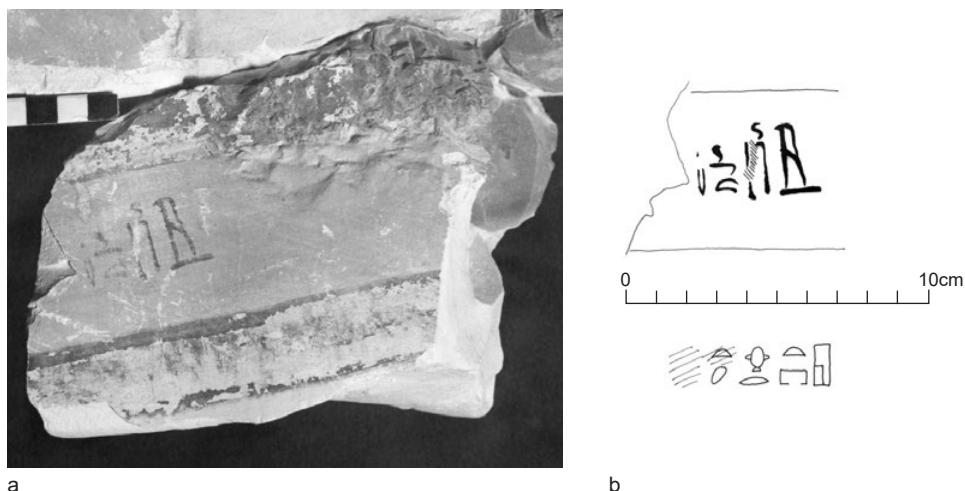

Nothing certain can be said about the precise dating of the inscriptions presented here, except the mere fact that they were written in Ramesside hieratic. The wab-priest Hori mentioned in the penultimate inscription (DeB 152) cannot be related convincingly to any of the persons of that name, known from the Theban sources.

Nothing certain can be said about the course of the feasts of Hathor celebrated at Deir el-Bahari. The sequence of scenes depicted in the Chapel of Hathor in the Hatshepsut temple gives only a general impression of the events relating to these festivities. Significantly, the date of the feast was given by some of the Deir el-Bahari graffiti, i.e. DeB 17, 63, 114, and possibly also 58 and 7.⁹

It is open to debate whether the ‘seeing Hathor’, mentioned in graffito DeB 153, relates to these festivities, and seeing the statue of Hathor in particular.¹⁰ It cannot be excluded that these cultic performances took place during the Beautiful Feast of the Valley, as in the case of the events commemorated in graffito DeB 31.¹¹ At least two more dipinti written in the Deir el-Bahari Temple of Thutmose III conspicuously mention ‘seeing Hathor’ – these are dipinti DeB 114 and 129 of Marciniak.¹² The former relates to ‘coming to see (m33)¹³ Hathor’ on the first day of the fourth month of akhet, i.e. on the date of the Hathor feast. Dipinto DeB 129 was left in the name of three priests of the three great temples of the Theban west side, who visited Deir el-Bahari ‘to see (ptr) Hathor, mistress of Djeseret’. Graffito DeB 39 (lines 3–4)¹⁴ mentions the visit of a pious lady coming to see the statue of Meretseger (i. iy m33.t, ‘who has come (to) see you’), no doubt during her festival.¹⁵ The formulae in question find a parallel in those attested in graffito DeB 17 (lines 5 and 6: m33 Imn, ‘seeing Amun’),¹⁶ and possibly also in DeB 72 (line 4: r di.t [m33].i Imn),¹⁷ being presumably references to ‘seeing’ the god’s statue during the Beautiful Feast of the Valley.¹⁸ The text of graffito DeB 1 (lines 33–34) states unequivocally that it was a festival procession which gave the opportunity to look at the statue of the goddess: r wdn n Hwt-Hr(w) [r] [m33] m h̄w.s nfr, ‘to offer to Hathor, and [to] ‘see¹ (her) in her beautiful processional appearance’.¹⁹
