

INTRODUCTION

Looking for solutions

In the World of growing social, political and economic tensions and turmoil, there is a lot of place for talented and hard-working scientists, especially specialized in economics, finance and management.

Society and Economy expect from us, that modern science will be more engaged in creating more human, but also economically effective better World.

In my opinion, the expectations are fully justified.

Meeting public expectations is exactly what our scientific challenge is.

To gain the strong public support for science, especially for public expenditures for science, we should provide solutions to problems.

“Copernican Journal of Finance & Accounting”, as a perfect forum for scientists and practitioners to exchange ideas and experience, offers excellent opportunities also for scientific co-operation and presentation of specific solutions in international dimension.

We invite you to take advantage of this opportunity.

Editor in Chief
Professor Leszek DZIAWGO